

Point of View and Narrator

Name: _____

Date: _____

Grade: Grade 5

Part A: Fill in the Blank

Write the missing word or number on each line.

1. A narrator who reveals every character's thoughts is third-person _____ .
2. A narrator stuck inside one character's mind is third-person _____ .
3. If the story is retold from the villain's POV, the reader may feel new _____ for the villain.
4. Switching from first-person to third-person changes how _____ the narrator feels.
5. When a story uses I, the narrator is also a _____ in the story.
6. An omniscient narrator can move between _____ to follow many characters at once.
7. Authors choose POV to control what information the _____ knows.
8. When only one character's thoughts appear, the reader may not know another character's true _____ .
9. Retelling the same event from a different _____ can reveal new details and motives.

Part B: Matching

Match each item on the left to the correct answer on the right.

1. Match each item to its correct answer.

Diary written by a girl named Mia

→ _____

First-person POV using I and my

Story showing thoughts of every character

→ _____

Third-person omniscient narrator

Story showing only Sam's thoughts

→ _____

Third-person limited narrator

Cookbook telling you to stir the batter

→ _____

Second-person POV using you

Part A: Fill in the Blank

Write the missing word or number on each line.

1. A narrator who reveals every character's thoughts is third-person omniscient .
2. A narrator stuck inside one character's mind is third-person limited .
3. If the story is retold from the villain's POV, the reader may feel new sympathy for the villain.
4. Switching from first-person to third-person changes how close the narrator feels.
5. When a story uses I, the narrator is also a character in the story.
6. An omniscient narrator can move between scenes to follow many characters at once.
7. Authors choose POV to control what information the reader knows.
8. When only one character's thoughts appear, the reader may not know another character's true feelings .
9. Retelling the same event from a different POV can reveal new details and motives.

Part B: Matching

Match each item on the left to the correct answer on the right.

1. Match each item to its correct answer.

Diary written by a girl named Mia	→	First-person POV using I and my	First-person POV using I and my
Story showing thoughts of every character	→	Third-person omniscient narrator	Third-person omniscient narrator
Story showing only Sam's thoughts	→	Third-person limited narrator	Third-person limited narrator
Cookbook telling you to stir the batter	→	Second-person POV using you	Second-person POV using you